WHAT TO DO WITH OUR SILVER

Pay It to the Pensioners, Says Comrade Palen H. Sims.

His Idea Meets with Some Favor In Rankin Post.

In fact, it was set forth that it would In fact, it was set forth that it would be a good scheme from every point of view, because it would liberate a large number of the silver deliars which the Government had piled up in the Treasury vaults at Washington, and enable the Government to save its gold for other purposes.

The amount annually paid out in pensions is about $150,000,000, and as the quarterly payment many fails due some-pencions is about $190,000,000, and as the quarterly payment soon falls due, something like $47,000,000 in silver would be put into circulation, which it was believed would be a very good thing for the country, and might in a considerable measure relieve the present financial stress.

Several of the other members of the Post took up Mr. Sims's idea with enhusiasm, and declared that he had a large and well-developed head for finance.

large and well-developed head for finance.

"What's the use of buying all this silver and storing it up in the Treasury vaults, if it is not to be put to good use some time, said one of Mr. Sim's supporters. "Here is a grand opportunity for the pensioners to come to the front and unkle a name for themselves as financiers, besides doing a great public benefit and showing the country and the nations of the world that silver is good for smelting after all.

fore they could collect all that was the them.

This objection was met by the offer of the more able-bodied veterans to furnish all the assistance that would be necessary to enable their more decrept brethren to get home with their load.

The course of action to be taken on the suggestion of Mr. Sims was not decided upon last night, but many expressed the view that an effort should be made to interest other posts and pensioners generally in the scheme, and that the Interior Department should be petitioned to issue an order that all pensioners should hereafter be paid as a liver coin.
